1. What intergenerational relationships do your children already have? This could be with older relatives, teenagers in the church, youth leaders or other influencers.
2. Who could you ask to be a positive influence on your children? How could you facilitate those relationships? What are the challenges to doing this?
3. Do you find it difficult to really listen to your children?
4. How could you actively listen more to what they are actually asking?
5. Can you identify any times where the questions your children ask have been more deeply rooted in questions of purpose, identity or belonging?
6. How comfortable are you with your children's worldview or opinions being different to yours?
7. How can you love them well even when they think differently to you?
8. What do you think about the three words Kara suggests help us give Jesus-centred answers to big questions?

Identity = enough

Belonging = with

Purpose = story

What words might help you as you navigate these big questions with your children?
